

Lots of fun with a surprise Ben Mahony show

Written by Richard Amery

Wednesday, 04 January 2017 12:07 - Last Updated Wednesday, 04 January 2017 12:09

---

I caught the end of a late announced Dec. 28 show at the Slice from Yukon songwriter Ben Mahony who entertained about a dozen people.

He ended a solo acoustic set with some pretty heartfelt, original material.

He turned his second set into a laid back jam session including Quint Viskup on bass. They played a touching tribute to George Michael by playing a jazzy version of his hit “Careless Whisper,” “ a jazzy version of Bruce Cockburn’s “Lovers in a Dangerous Time,” as well as, on the more quirky side, Ween’s “Piss Up A Rope.”

— By Richard Amery, L.A. beat Editor